Adding the sport in 1994, the University of Arkansas has a short, 18-year history of volleyball. In that time, 15 Razorbacks have tallied 1,000 or more kills. Here's a look at those special players and their numbers. Two players, Krystal Osborne and Denise Baez, were members of the inaugural team in 1994. Another, Christina Lawrence, completed her eligibility during the 2008 season. All 15 players were named to the All-Southeastern Conference team at least once during their career with Jessica Field and Kim Storey earning American Volleyball Coaches Association All-America honors in 1997 and 1998, respectively. In addition, five members of the 1,000-kill club--Krystal Osborne, Yarleen Santiago, Kim Storey, Denitza Koleva and Denise Baez--tallied at least 1,000 digs during their respective Razorback careers.

Christina Lawrence's career 1,000th kill came her senior year at No. 11 Florida in Gainesville. Lawrence needed two kills for 1,000 and finished with a Razorback-best nine. She hit .250 for Arkansas and had one dig while scoring nine points in the milestone match against the Gators.

Equally as impressive is Arkansas' seven-member 1,000-dig club, five of those players also had at least 1,000 kills during their careers. Ashley Miller moved into top spot in 2007 and holds every digs record at Arkansas. Miller held the SEC career digs record until the 2009 season; she is now No. 2 on the conference's all-time list. She is one of three players in SEC history to collect 2,000 or more career digs. In addition to Miller, Krystal Osborne, Yarleen Santiago, Kim Storey, Tina Rico, Deniz Koleva and Denise Baez all had more than 1,000 digs during their Arkansas careers.
